Hello TOUCHME team,

TOUCHME is built and close to public launch, but the real challenge is not installs. It is proving that Poznań can develop enough local density for profiles, onboarding, conversations, returns, and paid behavior to matter.

I agree with your constraint: cheap CPI can hide a weak community. For this kind of app, the first win is a measurable city model, not national reach.

The page below lays out how we would cover the mobile App Growth role as a team, run the controlled test, and judge fit against activation, retention, and monetization.
