Hi Carlton,

You already have in-house sales and marketing plans for patented, custom-made movable STEM robots, mainly aimed at K-12 schools, but the sales results have been terrible.

My plain opinion: this is less likely to be solved by more activity, and more likely to be solved by tighter buyer definition, channel testing, surveys, pricing signals, and better follow-up.

The page below lays out how I would compare the current in-house path with a done-for-you execution team, so you can judge the fit quickly.
