Hi Nick,

You were direct that Pokemarket does not need another strategy-only person. The gap is execution: taking your founder input, market data, raw footage, and screen recordings, then turning them into edited videos, posts, publishing, community distribution, outreach, and learnings.

One thing I noticed on the product: it already has strong content surfaces, especially the set analytics, sealed tracker, portfolio binder, and fair-queue store.

The page lays out how I would turn those assets into a first 30 days and a 90-day path to organic user acquisition.
