Hello KEECHEE team,

I'd start by making one content map before writing the first month of posts.

For each pillar, I'd write the U.S. buyer situation, the product reason to care, and the channel job in one line. Then a TikTok idea can lead with use, Pinterest can save the room or kitchen context, and Instagram or Facebook can carry the brand message without repeating the same post everywhere.

That fits the brief's mix of strategy, pillars, messaging, and platform-ready ideas, and it gives KEECHEE a simple way to reject content that looks nice but doesn't make the brand clearer.
