Hi Tricia,

The hard part here is not just configuring Pipedrive. It is moving a six to seven person commercial construction team away from a multi-tab spreadsheet without losing the relationship habits that already work.

I think the right build should stay intentionally simple: two connected pipelines, clean ownership, next actions, controlled Outlook visibility, and reporting that shows where qualified project inquiries are actually moving.

A short plan is below this note, including how I would handle discovery, migration, Microsoft security, automation, pricing, and the hire-versus-done-for-you comparison.
