19 October

Hello Visit Socotra team,

I'd check whether the live booking path records which post or campaign brought a traveler there, then compare that source with the bookings the operations team confirms as paid. That matters for Visit Socotra because the social accounts are new, and the brief asks you to keep paid and organic results separate.

If the source can't be traced through booking, I'd report qualified inquiries separately and hold off on calling one market or channel the booking winner. That gives the first campaign a useful decision rule without counting interest as a confirmed trip.

Allen