Hi Dennis,

I'd test one speaking enquiry and one course enquiry from the website form through to the next step. Check that each lands in its intended pipeline and gets the relevant follow-up; for the course enquiry, that might be a link to the requested resource or membership information.

That's a useful first check for Run That Rehab because the brief calls for one CRM to handle both speaking bookings and education leads. It can show where those two journeys need different routing before more enquiry types are connected.
