

17 September

Hi Mia,

Mimies already has the research most brands skip: 4,188 orders, 3,088 customer-written deck names, market avatars, hook lanes, static formats, prompts, and three months of ad data.

My plain opinion: "Personalised playing cards. The perfect gift for the one you love." is too broad. It names the product, but not the buyer's moment or the reason she should click now.

The page below shows how I would turn your existing inputs into weekly Meta briefs, static ads, phone-video scripts, and a one-page read on what to change next.

Allen