Hi Saad,

Since SonoRAY has live ultrasound course footage coming in every month, I'd make the first rule about intake before judging post ideas.

I'd tag every useful clip by course, clinical topic, speaker, content type, and intended channel before editing starts. That keeps a quick course promo, a teaching walkthrough, a carousel, and an ad creative from being treated like the same asset with different export sizes.

It also gives the team a fair way to judge the workflow: how quickly the same raw course material becomes usable posts without losing the medical context.
