Hi Mark,

I'd make the first week produce one plain lead-path map before the broader content work starts.

Because the brief puts brand, creative, SEO/GEO, social, website, and email into the same 3-month foundation build, I'd pick one intended inquiry path and mark where each channel should send people, what message they see there, and how that response will be tracked.

That gives the rest of the engagement a useful decision rule: fix anything that breaks the inquiry path first, then write and publish around the version that's easiest to measure.
