Hi Cezar,

Frontline's site has a hard job: explain AI voice screening, WhatsApp communication, candidate records, and recruiter follow-up to busy hiring operators without making it feel like abstract SaaS.

I think the right sprint is less about rebranding and more about making the core pages provide practical relief from no-shows, slow screening, repetitive calls, WhatsApp chaos, and manual coordination.

The short plan below covers positioning, page structure, conversion copy, SEO/AEO foundations, schema, tracking, and the next high-intent pages so you can judge fit quickly.
